Hamline Dialogue Series: Meeting the Goal - Examples from the Field

The Hamline Dialogue Series will finish its 2007-2008 series with a session on how experts are taking steps to move toward sustainability. Currently, Minnesota gets about 50% of its power from coal. However, in February 2007, Governor Pawlenty signed a bill requiring that by the year 2025, 25% of the state's electricity come from next-generation sources such as wind, solar and bio-fuels. This move away from fossil fuels is seen as an aggressive positive move in the move to sustainability. How will this requirement be met? What are energy providers doing already with next generation power sources? A panel of experts will discuss current examples of the move to more sustainable energy sources. This final session of the academic year will be Thursday, April 17 in the Kay Fredericks Ballroom in the Klas Center. Registration opens at 3:45. More information can be found on the Dialogue Series web site.

Grantwriting Clinic

On Thursday, May 8th from 9 am - noon, the Minnesota Council of Nonprofits will host a Grantwriting Clinic. Grantwriting endeavors too often drain an organization's limited resources and end in frustration. Nonprofits that consistently get their grants funded know how to target their solicitations, write a compelling case for their program or organization, make a flawless professional presentation, and build relationships and networks with their current and potential supporters. In this workshop, participants will gain knowledge that will help them to better understand and implement a more strategic grantwriting and development process for their organizations.
